Signal Corps Weather Device Found Near Raleigh

TIMMO got a call yesterday to come up to Raleigh and I went to the Tate service station where the gadget was held in captivity.

Johnny Bob Pingleton found it in the field yesterday morning while combining soybeans on his father's farm three miles north of Eldorado. He left a deflated balloon and brought the mechanism into Tate's at Raleigh.

Looking it over, I saw that there was a radio-sonde modulator because the white box in which it was contained had it imprinted on it. And attached to this was a radio-sonde transmitter, because this was stamped on the plastic cylinder which housed the apparatus.

There was a lot of delicate instruments in these two containers, and we noticed that there were a little antenna and lead-wire in the modulator box.

Other identifying marks was that it was from the Signal Corps of the U. S. Army and was made by the Friez Instrument division of Bendix Aviation corporation. The serial numbers were on both containers.

Calling Elmer Gladson, radio engineer, I quickly learned from my description that the device was a weather outfit released at some air base. Inside is the equipment that indicates the temperature, humidity, air pressure and other weather factors and each indicator has its own signal, which is transmitted back to the base through the transmitter and is recorded there on instruments.

These outfit float for hundreds of miles, until the balloon is deflated.

I HEARD a number of fine comments following the Harrisburg Marion football game here about the way the city police department and State Police handled the traffic.

"It was really something, the way the cars cleared out after the game," one motorist said. "They had the police at the right corners and they did a fine job in directing the traffic."

That's the kind of comments we like to hear.

Sometimes quite a battle for survival is waged.

Yesterday I was looking at a tomato plant about 18 inches high. William Dennis, who assists Custodian Ross Springs at the city hall, showed it to me in a flower pot.

Dennis saw it growing in the hard-packed cinder alley alongside the city hall. It continued to grow despite all odds being against it and recently Dennis transferred it to the flower pot. It was still outside but he said he was going to take it in when cold weather comes and see what happens.

UMW Journal Hits Ike Plans to Aid Coal Industry as Politics

WASHINGTON (AP)—The official publication of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers said Tuesday that "so far eye wash is about all the coal industry has got" under administration plans to help the industry's economy.

In an editorial to appear in its Oct. 1 issue, the UMW accused the administration of "mining coal by headlines" for purposes of "political propaganda."

The Journal belittled an administration plan to export 10 million tons of coal under the foreign aid program this fiscal year. It said that in the six weeks since the plan was announced "not a ton of coal has been bought or shipped."

Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada Dies

Death of Democrat Follows Speech at Campaign Rally

HAWTHORNE, Nev. (AP)—Democratic Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada, a "front row hell raiser" and frequent fiery foe of presidents for nearly a quarter of a century, died of a heart attack Tuesday night at the age of 78.

McCarran, sixth senator to die this year, had served in the Senate continuously since 1932 and was one of its most influential members.

He presided as chairman of the powerful Judiciary committee for many years before the Eisenhower administration took office in 1953.

Death came to the outspoken, white-haired senator a few minutes after he completed an eloquent speech at a Democratic party campaign rally at Hawthorne, site of a huge naval ammunition depot 150 miles south of Reno.

McCarran did not face re-election until 1956 but had urged election of a Democrat not only in Nevada but throughout the nation in November.

"It is imperative that a Democratic Congress be elected in order that your senior senator may resume his position as head of the Judiciary committee of the Senate and continue his fight against Communism," McCarran declared only moments before his death.

"At no day in history has the United States been in such jeopardy as it is today," he added sternly. "It is beset with enemies from within and from abroad in greater numbers than ever before."

A few minutes after completing his speech, he collapsed in the auditorium in which the rally was being held while shaking hands with admirers and slumped to the floor. A fire department resuscitator failed to revive him and he was pronounced dead by Drs. E. F. Hanson and Robert Nelson of Hawthorne.

Believe Occulsion Caused Death
Dr. Hanson said preliminary indications were that McCarran died of a coronary occlusion. He had suffered from a heart ailment for the past several years and had been stricken seriously several times.

Funeral services will be announced in Reno.

Gov. Charles Russell, a Republican, is expected to appoint a Republican to succeed McCarran but there were indications this may not be done until after the Nov. 2 election.

McCarran's death cuts the Democratic strength in the Senate to 46, with 45 Republicans and one independent, and could have an important bearing upon the Republican-Democratic struggle to win control of the upper chamber in November.

Mother, Two Small Daughters Die in Fire

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—An explosion and flash fire Tuesday took the lives of a mother and her two small girls and burned two other members of the family.

Patricia Ann Williams, 4, and her sister, Barbara Lynn, 6 months, were burned fatally in the fire. Their mother, Mrs. Bonnie Jean Williams, 25, died later at county emergency hospital.

A son, Kenneth, 2, was in critical condition at the hospital, while the father, Earl Williams Jr., 26, was in fair condition.

Equal Funds for Education Needed in Illinois, Armistead Says at Kiwanis

School finance problems and how they affect Saline county schools were discussed last night at the Kiwanis club by Fred J. Armistead, member of the club and assistant superintendent of schools.

He was assisted in the program by Ronald Darnell of the Junior high faculty who showed film slides from the Illinois Education association on "A Firm Foundation" in schooling for children.

Armistead, in pointing out that state aid is necessary to equalize educational opportunities in all schools of the state, said it is the right of every child to have a public education regardless of his background or where he lives.

In Saline county he said, last year the total cost for education purposes was $711,000 and for building purposes it was $210,000. The state furnished $563,000 to Saline county for education purposes.

In District 43, he stated, the state funds totaled $173,000, local funds $114,000 plus $63,000 for building funds.

The state at the present time is paying 98 per cent of claims for school aid, but this will be reduced to 90 per cent by Jan. 1, with further cuts in prospect, it was pointed out at the Southern Divi-

Two Raleigh Youths Injured In Auto Crash

Two youths from Raleigh were taken to the Lightner hospital last night for treatment and observation after their auto rolled down an embankment on Route 34 following a crash.

They were Donald Thornberry, 18, driver of the auto, and Bill Hailis, 20, his companion.

Sheriff Paul Spangler said their car crashed into the rear of another, driven by Charles Sutton, that had slowed when it came up behind a truck without lights.

The crash occurred about two miles north of Harrisburg. All vehicles were travelling toward Harrisburg.

Spangler said he was informed that Sutton was driving a car belonging to the Pool Pontiac company while an auto belonging to his stepfather, Irl Dixon, was being repaired at the garage. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon were in the auto with him at the time.

They told the sheriff that they slowed quickly when they came up behind a truck without lights and that the other car, behind, crashed into the rear of the car they were in.

Dulles Issues Warning to 9-Power Group

Says U. S. May Withdraw Its Commitments

LONDON (AP)—The United States warned the nine-power conference here this afternoon that America will withdraw its commitments to Europe if the conference fails to agree on German rearmament.

Delegates emerging from the conference said U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles promised the same support to a new European defense organization as had been pledged to the now dead European Defense Community plan.

But they said Dulles made it clear that the present conference is Europe's last chance to keep the United States committed.

Eden Pledges Four Divisions
British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who with Dulles took up most of this afternoon's session, promised that Britain will keep four divisions of troops on the continent to bolster any new defense arrangement.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France met Dulles privately earlier today in a "man-to-man" bid to sell the American diplomat on the Frenchman's "package deal" for rearming Germany.

Authoritative sources said the French premier called for an American commitment to keep troops in Europe for 50 years as a part of his scheme for safeguarding against revived German militarism.

In the nine-nations conference itself, delegates were understood to have agreed on restrictions that will bar a rearmament of Germany from developing atomic weapons.

They agreed in principle to bar atomic arms plans in areas "strategically exposed" to Soviet invasion. To eliminate the impression of discrimination against Germany, the area was defined to include eastern and northern France and other nations neighboring the Iron Curtain.

Agreement in principle also was reached that a rearmament of Germany should have half a million soldiers, airmen and naval personnel.

But the Mendes-France meeting with Dulles had more far reaching implications for the success or failure of the conference than developments in the conference itself. His demand for long-term U. S. troop commitments was extremely touchy.

He also was understood to have urged the United States to funnel all American military aid to Europe through the Brussels pact headquarters, which France has proposed as the agency to control German rearmament.

Revised Lists Show 60 American Dead in Typhoon

TOKYO (AP)—U. S. Army and Air Force headquarters today issued revised lists of American casualties in the sinking of the railroad ferry Toya Maru. They revealed that 60 Americans are dead or missing.

Previously 57 Americans were reported dead or missing when the ferry capsized Sunday night in the typhoon-whipped Tsurugai Straits with a loss of 1,164 persons.

Three of the Air Force dead were women civilian school teachers. The Army included the wives and the daughters of two missing soldiers on its list.

Neither of the lists included two civilians who died in the sinking: Thomas N. West, representative of a West Coast cosmetic firm, and YMCA worker Dean Leeper, Carlock, Ill.

The official Army list included: Chester L. Brown, Pfc. Indianapolis, Ind.; Albert A. Canales, Pfc. Waukegan, Ill.; Clarence L. Davis, Cpl. St. Louis, Mo.; Teddy D. Graham, Pfc. St. Louis, Mo.; Cicero E. Harris Jr., Pfc. Chicago; Bernard J. Leuchs, Pfc. Farley, Ia.; Henry L. Monning, Pvt. Ke-wanee, Ill.

Jaycees Hope to Reach Industry Fund Goal Within Next Week

Harrisburg Jaycees were hopeful today of reaching their industry fund goal within the next week, provided continued cooperation from businessmen and individuals is received.

The industry fund drive has been divided into several phases, with solicitation of businessmen as the prime fund-raising project. Response to the appeal for individual dollar donations has also been gratifying, with over six hundred dollars received in one week. A Jaycee spokesman said today that the organization hoped that private individuals would continue to send in their dollar donations, thus saving the industry fund committee a great deal of time in solicitations.

A third phase of the fund drive involves the placing of the handsome Jaycee brochure, "Welcome to Harrisburg," on newsstands around the square, with a copy being given for each donation. The brochures have been placed in Skaggs Pharmacy, Jackson's Drug store, Rainbow's, and the Webster Pharmacy, with signs asking for donations to the Jaycee industry fund in return for a copy of the brochure. This procedure was adopted in response to a number of requests for the brochure, and it provides an easy method for individuals to obtain copies and at the same time help the industry drive. Copies of the brochure are also available at the Daily Register office.

In order to fulfill the agreement with Irving I. Hudes, of the Advanced Methods, Inc., firm, the Jaycees still need approximately $4,000. In return for financial assistance, Hudes has agreed to employ a minimum of 120 persons for a minimum of three years, thus contributing greatly to the Harrisburg economy.

Bob Davenport, chairman of the Jaycee industry committee, pointed out that where other communities have paid out as much as $250,000 for one industry, such as Mt. Vernon, Pinckneyville, and others in the area, the Jaycees have helped bring three new payrolls to our town within the past 18 months, at a total cost of about $16,000. These three new sources of employment, the Harrisburg Manufacturing Co., in the Cummins building, Ellis Trucking company's way station on Rt. 45, and the Hudes firm, Advanced Methods, Inc., will eventually mean over 400 new paychecks each week, at a time when they are quite important to Harrisburg's economy, Davenport stated.

The suit, filed by Atty. L. M. Hancock and Atty. Glen O. Jones, named Joe Bozarth, Ruby Bozarth, Marion J. Bozarth and Gladys Bozarth the defendants.

The petition for condemnation says the parties cannot agree on compensation for the needed land and asks that the compensation be set by law.

Rails to Cut Rates On Hay Shipments To Drought States

DENVER (AP)—The White House today announced that the American railroads had agreed to cut freight rates 50 per cent on hay shipments into 15 drought-stricken states until mid-December.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson requested the cut Monday.

On hearing the reduction from William T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads the President said he was "profoundly gratified at the prompt response of the railroads."

Faricy said the reduction probably would go into effect Oct. 1 and extend to Dec. 15.

"We are determined to do everything we can to reduce the hardship and suffering of those severely affected by drought conditions," the President said. "This is a problem which concerns the entire nation."

GOP Receives Sobering Report From Nixon

By LYLE C. WILSON

UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT
WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon brought back from his recent midwestern political swing a sobering report that the Republican party lags in the campaign for House control in the next Congress.

Nixon also has reported to party leaders that the Republicans are about even in the race for the Senate, but he is confident an aggressive Republican campaign from now until election day, Nov. 2, will win for his party.

The burden of Nixon's report seems to be that the trend is against the Republicans right now, but that it can be turned by smartly aggressive political strategy. Top strategy involves President Eisenhower. Nixon and others believe the President's recent political speech in Los Angeles was enormously effective. They hope for two and, possibly, three more major Eisenhower political speeches.

Estimate Unchanged
Nixon's estimate of the Senate House contest is about the same now as when he outlined it in closed session several weeks ago to party workers in Ohio. That outline leaked to the press. The vice president's current report to party leaders cited voters' apathy and division among some state Republican organizations regarding candidates as two factors hurting the Republican cause.

But he also found that some of the organization disputes were easing, notably in Illinois and Indiana. And he was confident that the angry split among Republicans in New Jersey would not prevent the election of former representative Clifford P. Case to the Senate. Refusal of former representative Fred A. Hartley Jr. Tuesday to become a Republican write-in candidate in opposition to Case appears to support Nixon's judgment there. He thinks the Case opposition within the New Jersey Republican party is being cut down to size.

Cites Best Issues
Nixon sees as the best Republican issues in this campaign what he described as:

1. Handling of the domestic Communist problem.
2. The personal integrity of the

Subgroup OK's Request by Sen. Kefauver

Langer Promises Probe of Charge By Ousted Official

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee today requested the Atomic Energy Commission to hold up signing of the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract until the subcommittee finished an investigation.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) made the request as the subcommittee which is investigating monopolies, entered its second day of hearings on the controversial administration power proposal.

Chairman William Langer (R.N.D.) said "I certainly agree" with Kefauver's request. He then announced that the move was "unanimously passed" and the request would be sent immediately to the AEC.

Earlier Langer promised a full exploration of an ousted Mississippi utility official's charge that "King Wall Street" controlled his power firm.

"We're going to get the facts," Langer told newsmen in advance of today's hearing, at which J. D. Stietenroth, former secretary-treasurer of the Mississippi Power & Light Co., was recalled as a witness.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

What doth it profit my brethren, tho a man say he hath faith, and have not works; can faith save him? — James 2:14. Credulity is not faith. Faith is laying hold of truth and making it a part of life. It has a creative quality.

A Peaceful Atomic Program

Editorial — By BRUCE BLOSSAT It was not too long ago that critics were saying harshly that President Eisenhower's atomic pool for peace was just a sketchy idea, that at the time he proposed it neither he nor anyone else around him had the foggiest notion how it might be made to work.

They must have been rather startled at the recent announcement of an historic atomic agreement involving this country, Britain, France, Canada, Australia and South Africa.

Obviously the criticism was not well taken. That does not mean there was a clear, carefully thought out plan in existence when Mr. Eisenhower first mentioned the pool idea. What the criticism seems to overlook is that many statesmanlike achievements are born as sketchy ideas.

When former Secretary of State George Marshall first suggested the European aid program which later bore his name, there was no detailed plan. When former President Truman listed certain items of world policy in his 1949 inaugural address, he included a "Point Four" calling for technical and material help to underdeveloped areas. Again, no plan existed. But one does today.

It is not necessary to wait until a plan is reduced to full blueprint stage before telling the world about it. Mr. Eisenhower's December speech to the UN atomic pool stirred the hearts of the free world as few utterances have done since the end of World War II. It deserved to be heard when it was.

Russia caused no great surprise, of course, when it refused to take any practical steps toward the fulfillment of this proposed program. But we can be thankful that there is still sufficient imaginative statesmanship in the free world to see that this was a plan to be pushed with or without Russia.

Under the new agreement, the participating countries will learn how to use the atom in medicine, agriculture and industry. Knowledge gleaned from operation of atomic power plants such as America is now beginning to experiment with will be passed on. To transmit this priceless understanding of the atom's peaceful uses, this country will set up a special training school.

As others have observed, atomic bombs may have served to prevent a third world war so far. But they have not helped to win the Cold War, the political struggle going on between Communist and free worlds in all the earth's free areas. Peaceful application of the atom, however, might prove to be one of the free world's most winning assets in this bitter contest.

The new atomic pool agreement is an alliance for peace. It is an alliance set up to serve mankind. It is aimed not at protecting people from some aggressor's bombs or guns but at making them stronger and healthier, at giving them a higher standard of living, and a fuller, richer life.

Quite an idea, when you come to think of it.

Huge Work Load Faces New Internal Security Division

By PETER EDSON NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The new Internal Security Division of the Department of Justice is just beginning to get organized under the newest of eight assistant attorneys general. He is William F. Tompkins, 41, former dope ring and racket busting U. S. district attorney for New Jersey.

Among other things, his job will be to administer the new Communist control, or antisubversive laws passed by Congress in its closing days. They cover such things as increased penalties for bail jumping, harboring of fugitives, espionage and sabotage.

They include the new Communist-infiltrated organization law, forfeiture of citizenship, the granting of immunity to government witnesses, the printing press bill which makes subversive organizations register all their printing machinery, and the so-called Alger Hiss bill, which will deny U. S. pensions to ex-government employees convicted of a crime.

In addition to all this new business, the new Internal Security Division inherits all the old cases in this field formerly handled by the Criminal Division. This work includes all the Smith Act cases against Communist conspiracies, Subversive Activities Control Board cases, espionage, treason, sedition, perjury, contempt of Congress and atomic energy security cases.

ALSO INCLUDED ARE the old big-name cases — Harry Dexter White, Owen Lattimore, Harry Bridges and the like.

His aim is to get the Department of Justice docket of internal security cases on a much more current basis. Mr. Tompkins won something of a reputation for getting the New Jersey federal court docket brought up to date. That helped bounce him into his present job.

His principal activity now is recruiting a new staff of about 40 attorneys competent to handle internal security cases. Some 60 lawyers were transferred over from the old internal security section in the Criminal Division. But to handle the new internal security work load will require a staff of 100 and an expenditure of nearly a million dollars a year.

Few people realize the volume of internal security cases which flow into the Department of Justice. There is a holdover backlog of some 45,000 cases. About 15,000 new cases were reported in the fiscal year ending last June 30.

THESE FIGURES SEEM SOMEWHAT preposterous at first impression. There just aren't that many subversives in the country. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has put the number of U. S. Communists at around 25,000.

But with this figure must be considered the fact that every party member may have from one to 200 fellow travelers to do his bidding. And for every Communist in jail, there always seems to be another ready to step into his shoes.

What the backlog of 45,000 internal security cases and the load of 15,000 new cases a year represent are the numbers of first reports on alleged subversive activities in the U. S. Each of them must be investigated, even though most of them do not result in prosecutions. The 45,000 cases do not mean that the Department of Justice is embarking on a witch-hunt or on thought control.

"I AM EXTREMELY SENSITIVE about protecting people's rights," says Mr. Tompkins, "but we also have to protect the government's rights. This job of cleaning out subversives can, however, be done right."

By "right" he means through admissible evidence in regular court trials, and not by smear, rumor or slander.

As an example he cites a recent paper-back book on "McCarthyism" which he picked up while waiting for Congress to act on one of his new bills. In a chapter on Owen Lattimore, it was mentioned that 14 witnesses had identified him as a Communist. Tompkins checked up, and found that 13 reported it on hearsay.

"A lot of people would like to have me denounce McCarthy for things like this," says Tompkins, "but I won't do it." He has met the senator only once, briefly, at the Downtown Club in Newark.

Social Security Positions Open

Approximately 150 positions for Claims Assistant trainees and Field Assistant trainees have been recently created throughout Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan by the extension of Social Security coverage signed into law by the President, according to J. A. Connor, 7th Regional Director of the U. S. Civil Service commission, Chicago.

The Social Security Administration, under the leadership of the U. S. Civil Service commission is conducting a recruiting program to fill these positions with college graduates having appropriate Social Science backgrounds and with persons having qualifying experience. Full information may be obtained through the Chicago office of the U. S. Civil Service Commission or through local Social Security representatives and post offices. The Social Security Administration district office is located in the Harrisburg National Bank building.

Hospital Exhibits Kids' Favorite Tid-bits

FRESNO, Calif. — Youngsters will swallow anything. Proof of this statement is displayed in the lobby of the Valley Children's Hospital where an exhibit contains articles removed from children's stomachs.

Among the various items devoured by the boys and girls are needles, washers, sunflower seeds, small bones, a clock gear, a jack and a stone, two earrings, a stove bolt, two three-quarter-inch metal slugs, a metal envelope clasp and an elongated piece of tin.

Money seems to be quite desirable, with coins of all denominations involved.

Social Security Checks Will Show Increased Payments for September

When the monthly old-age and survivors insurance checks are delivered on schedule Monday, Oct. 4, all retired persons and all families on the rolls will find their payments increased. These increases, which range from very modest amounts to individual members of some families, up to as much as $31.50 to some widows with several children, result from the 1954 Amendments to the Social Security Act, signed into law by President Eisenhower on September 1. All the six-and-a-half-million people receiving monthly social security payments will benefit from the changes, said E. Bishop Hill, manager of the social security district office in Harrisburg. That includes approximately 15,000 beneficiaries in southern Illinois, he said.

The new payment rates are for the month of September. At the time the August checks were delivered, about Sept. 3, every beneficiary received notice of the forthcoming increases, with caution that he needed to take no action to secure the higher payments. All changes have been made automatically, in a huge bookkeeping operation carried out in the several social security payment centers over the country, and in the Treasury disbursing offices which prepare and mail the checks.

The present minimum payments of $25 to a retired worker will go up to $30. The highest monthly payment to a retired worker is now $85; beginning with the September checks, this will be raised to $93.50. Comparable increases will be made to other retired workers. Dependents and survivors now receiving monthly payments will get proportionate increases. Mr. Hill declared. The largest total payment to a family will be raised from $168.50 to $200. As heretofore, however, the largest monthly benefit payable to a family cannot be more than 80% of its insured worker's average monthly earnings. In all cases, all families will receive an increase of at least $5.00 monthly in their total benefit payments.

Mr. Hill said that in cases where 80 per cent of the insured worker's average monthly earnings would reduce the total payment to a family below $50, the family will get $50. The following table shows examples of the monthly benefit increases which retired workers will find in their September checks which will reach them early in October.

Present monthly payments to retired workers	New monthly payments to retired workers
$25.00	$30.00
30.00	35.00
40.00	45.00
50.00	55.00
60.00	65.10
70.00	75.50
80.10	91.90

Beta Kappa Chapter Holds Party For Fall Rushes

On Monday evening, Sept. 27, the Beta Kappa chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its first party for the fall rushes.

The entertainment started at the home of Mrs. Ronald Coon where everyone was introduced and served with delicious ice-box pudding and coffee. The rushes and the members then attended and enjoyed the movie, "The Garden of Evil." After the movie, a variety of cheese snacks and Cokes were served at the home of Mrs. Gene Neuhaus.

The party was informal and the rushes entertained the members with a few songs followed by group singing.

The following rushes were present: Mrs. Thomas Davenport, Mrs. Jim Sullivan, Mrs. Wendell Oglesby, Mrs. Ben Brinkley, Mrs. Joseph W. Pulliam, Mrs. Bill Brashears, and Miss Doris McDermott.

Members present were Mrs. Marvin Barnett, Mrs. Glendall Dunbar, Mrs. Bob Gaskins, Mrs. Joseph Gaul, Mrs. Wm. Keen, Mrs. Leo Podorski, Mrs. Wm. Polack, Mrs. Samuel E. Porter, Mrs. James Suver, the two hostesses, Mrs. Coon and Mrs. Neuhaus, and the assistant hostesses, Miss Margaret Toth and Mrs. Claude Phelps.

Donnie Utter Has Party On Eighth Birthday

Donnie Utter celebrated his eighth birthday Sunday with a theatre party.

Following the movie the children enjoyed ice cream and birthday cake at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Utter, 129 South Jackson.

Games were played in the afternoon.

Present were Guy Lee Turner, Chuckie Moore, Frankie Jarrell, Bobby Eward, Ronnie Hester, Susie Tuttle, Brenda Reynolds, Katy Lou Miley, Connie Jo Ziegler, Peter Hudes, Johnny and Kathy Utter.

Mrs. Perry Moore is Guest Speaker of Lenore Circle

Mrs. Perry Moore, Spiritual Life secretary of the Women's Guild of the Presbyterian church, was a guest of the Lenore circle of that church, which met with Miss Juanita Joiner Monday evening. Mrs. Moore, substituting for Mrs. Ownley Furman, in the Bible study, told of "An Empowered Church," the story of the early Christian church as related by Dr. Luke in the book of Acts. Mrs. Herman Seifried continued with the lesson by telling of how that church expanded.

Miss Jean Selby gave the Year Book of Prayer devotion, naming the missionaries for the day and closing with prayer.

Miss Mary Morrison reviewed the first chapter of the book "Under Three Flags," which is the book to be reviewed by Miss Olive Dean at the joint meeting Wednesday of the women of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches to be held in the lower rooms of the Presbyterian church.

At the close of the program, Mrs. Stella Brashears, circle chairman, called attention to the meeting Wednesday and that it was to be a luncheon meeting, commencing at 10 o'clock, and also reminded the circle that this circle would serve the church Stewardship dinners Oct. 13 and 27.

During the social hour refreshments of orange sodas and home-made cookies were served by the hostess to those mentioned above and Mrs. Harry Barter, Mrs. Mildred Boicourt, Lelle Anderson, Gladys Gaskins, Ethel Ewing, Julia Williamson, Mrs. Steve Farrar, and Mrs. Stone, mother of the hostess, and Mrs. George Henderson, another guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Erton were called to Jasonville, Ind., Saturday by the death of his cousin, John Stanley. They visited his aunt, Mrs. Cordia Whisnand at Bloomington, Ind., before returning home Sunday.

Trinity College at Durham, North Carolina changed its name to Duke University in order to receive funds left it by a wealthy tobacco manufacturer.

Larry Bolerjack, Aurora, accompanied by Larry L. Rendleman, also of Aurora, is visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Bolerjack, 512 North Granger. Mr. Bolerjack, fashion designer, and Mr. Rendleman have just returned from Miami Beach, Fla., where Mr. Bolerjack looked for new ideas for his next summer line of dresses. While there they attended a fashion show with Sylvia Sidney, movie actress, as commentator, previewing next year's beachwear, resort style and summer dresses.

Mrs. James Yarber, 1008 South Land, was called to the bedside of her brother, J. B. Autry, in Tiptonville, Tenn., Sunday. Mr. Autry, who suffered a stroke, has been bedfast for the past three months.

Eisenhower Names Granite City Man As Staff Secretary

DENVER — President Eisenhower today selected a new White House staff secretary and defense liaison officer — Col. Andrew J. Goodpaster, 39, now Army district engineer at San Francisco.

A native of Granite City, Ill., and a 1939 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Goodpaster saw World War II combat in Italy and for three post-war years attended Princeton University for a graduate study in international relations.

Williamson Sheriff Recovers Safe From Strip Mine Pit

MARION, Ill. — Sheriff Ora Kirby had a 700-pound safe on his hands today and didn't know quite what to do with it.

The safe was recovered from a strip mine pit near here Monday and Kirby started an investigation to see if there had been a recent safe burglary. Tuesday night a transfer company official called and told Kirby they hauled the discarded safe there last week and he might as well return it to the pit.

Kirby said he might try to make use of it because "it's a pretty good safe except that the lock is busted off."

U. S. Ships to Help Rescue Flood Victims in Honduras

BELIZE, British Honduras — Two United States naval ships sped toward Honduras' northern coast today to help rescue victims of disastrous floods caused by a tropical storm.

The naval vessels were dispatched from Cuba in response to urgent appeals.

It was reported here that the destroyer escort Haas would arrive about 4 p. m. and that the cargo ship Wyandotte would reach the stricken region Thursday.

Flood conditions were reported becoming rapidly more serious. Many people were reported stranded on roof tops and clinging to the tops of trees awaiting rescue.

In Belize harbor, the 80-ton fishing vessel Poia C ran aground and was pounded to pieces in the heavy seas and a 40-mile wind.

Millions of dollars of damage were reported.

Heirens Has Until Oct. 18 to File Petition for Rehearing

SPRINGFIELD — William Heirens' lawyers have until Oct. 18 to file a petition giving their arguments why the Illinois Supreme Court should reconsider the convicted slayer's case.

Attorneys for Heirens, serving three life terms for the brutal killing of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan and two Chicago women, filed notice Tuesday that they will seek a rehearing of last Thursday's court decision denying Heirens a new trial.

Seize Husband After Abducting Estranged Wife

CREVE COEUR, Ill. — A man who slashed his wife's stepfather and threatened to kill his wife was arrested early today in a used car lot in nearby East Peoria.

His wife, who was with him when he was arrested, was unhurt.

Police Capt. Floyd Castleman identified the man as James Hinton, 29, a Kentuckian who more recently had lived in Chicago. Hinton and his 17-year-old wife had made their home there with her stepfather, Robert Johnson, for some time.

Castleman said Hinton arrived home about 8:30 p. m. Tuesday, apparently in a party drunken condition and became troublesome.

The officer said Hinton drew a knife, threatened Johnson and said he would kill his wife "before morning."

He allegedly slashed at Johnson, who was not seriously injured, and took his wife to their automobile and fled.

Police later discovered the pair in the auto hiding in a used car lot in East Peoria, where Hinton was arrested and taken to the Peoria, Ill., jail.

He was charged with assault with a deadly weapon by Johnson. His wife did not file charges against him, Castleman reported.

Dynamite Bomb Damages Four Buildings At Mount Vernon

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. — Police today ruled out a theory that an airplane dropped a dynamite bomb which damaged four buildings.

Instead, officers said, the bomb was apparently tossed from an automobile.

The dynamite blasted a hole in the Meek cleaning shop, nine blocks south of the main business district, shortly after midnight Tuesday.

PARTICIPATES IN CEREMONY IN HOLLAND
Warrant Officer Junior Grade Lowell D. Rogers, son of Silas Rodgers, Eldorado, recently participated in a ceremony at Nijmegen, Holland, commemorating the 10th anniversary of the parachute drop made there during World War II by the 82nd Airborne Division.

At the ceremony, Mr. Rodgers, who plays the flute in addition to leading the 7th Army band, took part in a concert preceding the unveiling of a memorial to the air drop and played at a mass band concert later in the evening.

Mr. Rodgers' wife, Eulela, is with him in Germany. A veteran of World War II, he has served both in the European theater and in Korea. Rodgers began his Army career 24 years ago.

Capt. John L. Hart, son of Dr. A. E. Hart, Carrier Mills, recently arrived in Alaska for duty with the 4th Regimental Combat team at Ladd Air Force base. Capt. Hart, who entered the Army in 1942, was last stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. He served in the Pacific theater during World War II and in Korea. His decorations include the Bronze Star medal. He is a graduate of West Michigan college, Kalamazoo, and received his masters degree from Drake university. His wife, Wanda, is with him in Alaska.

M-Sgt. B. E. Welling, whose wife, Melba, lives on RFD 3, Harrisburg, recently participated in the 9th Infantry Division's "August Moon" fall maneuvers after arriving in Germany earlier in the month. Sgt. Welling spent seven days training in the field in southern Germany as part of his new unit's program of maintaining combat readiness. He entered the Army in 1942.

Judy Garland's Career Depends On New Film

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD — Judy Garland's career may depend on the verdict of 2,816 jury members who will parade into a glittering theater on legendary Hollywood Boulevard tonight.

The jurors are film celebrities and fans lucky enough to snare $5.50 tickets to the premiere of the pug-nosed singing star's comeback picture, "A Star Is Born." Nearly four times as many Hollywoodites clamored for tickets to the opening that's the most dazzling and baby-faced since "Gone With the Wind" flashed on an Atlanta screen.

For on the big reels of celluloid hang the future of the explosive and highly talented actress. The behind-the-screen story of this movie is a star-is-born story, too. The picture started on a three million dollar budget and wound up costing six million dollars. The shooting schedule stretched to 10 months.

May Be Last
Three top film executives anonymously say if the critics and audience shrug at the extravagant film Judy may never work again in Filmville.

But most film experts agree that if the picture is a success — and with star names and such publicity it is likely to be one — movie-makers will rush to hire Judy, so-called "temperament" and all.

Only one executive said he feared the picture may be Judy's greatest but her last because of the trouble that dogged the picture.

Big-eyed Judy had a phenomenal career as a child star at MGM, but her grown-up life has been troubled with unhappy marriages, held-up pictures, fights with her studio, illness and an attempted suicide.

She quit movies to regain her confidence and success on the stage in New York and London. Then she returned to Hollywood, to a happy marriage and child with producer Sid Luft and another try at the silver screen.

Silent By Day
Producer Jack Warner agreed to release and finance her property, "A Star Is Born." After eight days of shooting the company changed cameramen and switched to CinemaScope. The difficulties were only beginning.

Judy was sick off and on. After differences of opinion with the fiery star, the musical arranger and the costume designer quit. Judy finally was so afflicted with insomnia that the company had to shoot at night so she could sleep by day. She put her heart and life into the picture, and her insistence on perfection boosted the cost.

The movie ran more than three hours when she decided to add another musical number. New songs had to be written, new sets built. That number alone took 24 days to shoot.

"Other studios would have lowered the boom but Warner urged her on. He felt he had a great picture," one studio worker explained.

You should be able to see the book titles in your glass-enclosed bookcases quite clearly. If you can't, it's time to wash them. Soak the panes on both sides with soapuds, then rinse well and wipe dry. To avoid streaking, rub the glass in one direction only.

Picking the Grid Winners IN THE Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK — Pitching and punting from the Polo Grounds — Fraley's Follies and the weekend football "winners" along with a few thoughts on the World Series.
Game Of The Week
Notre Dame over Purdue — This is always a bearcat with the Boilermakers ever ready to slip the Irish a mickey. But Notre Dame showed a first class contender for national honors in its debut and should take this one.
The East
Penn State over Syracuse — Hank Majeski, 38, is the oldest series player.
Minnesota over Pitt — Joe Amalfitano, 20, is the youngest.
Mississippi over Villanova — Bill Taylor, 6-4, is the tallest.
Navy over Dartmouth — Don Liddle is the littles at 5-9.
Also: Penn over W & M, Yale over Brown, Princeton over Columbia, Boston College over Temple, Harvard over Massachusetts, Bucknell over Gettysburg, Fordham over Rutgers and Colgate over Holy Cross.
The Midwest
Army over Michigan — Al Rosen is the most rugged.
Ohio State over California — Davey Williams is the hand-somest.
Southern Cal over Northwestern — Sal Maglie looks the most sinister.
Wisconsin over Michigan State — Early Wynn is the snappiest dresser.
Also: Indiana over COP, Nebraska over Iowa State, Iowa over Montana, Colorado over Kansas, Kansas State over Missouri, Cincinnati over Tulsa and Wichita over Drake.
The South
Duke over Tennessee — Willie Mays is the happiest.
Georgia Tech over SMU — Bob Feller is the most intense.
South Carolina over West Virginia — Vic Wertz is the baldest.
Baylor over Miami — Herman Franks is the fattest.
Also: Florida over Auburn, Alabama over Vanderbilt, Mississippi State over Arkansas State, North Carolina State over Wake Forest, North Carolina over Tulane, Georgia over Texas A & M, Kentucky over LSU, Clemson over Virginia Tech and Virginia over George Washington.
The West
Maryland over UCLA — Paul Giel is the best football player.
Illinois over Stanford — Al Dark was pretty fair, too.
Washington over Oregon State — Leo Durocher is the best gin rummy player.
Oregon over Utah — Al Lopez may be better at Chinese checkers.
Also: Brigham Young over Colorado Aggies, Wyoming over Denver and Idaho over San Jose State.
The Southwest
Texas over Washington State — California has more players in the series than any other state.
Rice over Cornell — The South has the most overall.
TCU over Arkansas — But 20 states are represented.
Texas Tech over Oklahoma Aggies — Which is about how far you'll be able to hear the winners when they celebrate in the dressing room.

Gopher Center Is Named Lineman of Week

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Chuck Stamschror, a burly Minnesota center and linebacker made so many tackles against Nebraska Saturday he "wore himself out," Coach Murray Warmath said today.
But Stamschror, a husky hard-hitter, stood out so much he was named United Press Midwest Lineman of the Week.
"He played a jam-up game," Warmath said.
That about sums up the sentiments of the thousands who watched Minnesota bounce Nebraska 19-7 and saw Stamschror's No. 50 pulled off pile after pile.
"He surely deserves the honor," Warmath said.
"He played a fine offensive game, but I'm sure he gained most attention with the number of hard tackles he made. He's kind of bruised yet."
"A Fine Leader"
"It was a fine all-around game," Warmath said. "I'm proud of the boy. He's a fine leader."
Stamschror modestly gave credit to Warmath's defensive patterns, in which his job was to "jam up" Nebraska's split-T attack. The number of loose footballs in the Husker secondary was evidence Stamschror carried out orders.
"The defense made me look good. Sure, I made some tackles, but look at the ones I should have made and didn't," Stamschror said.
"And the rest of our guys were pretty important, too," the 6-foot 196-pound senior said.
Stamschror not only made solid tackles, he also batted down several Husker passes as the Gophers held Nebraska to 33 yards through the air.
Adept With His Hands
"I guess a little basketball I had in high school helped me there," Stamschror said. "I'm able to use my hands a little better."
Until two years ago, Stamschror had never centered a ball or thrown a block on offense. All of his work had been as a defensive linebacker until the two platoon system was ruled out.
Then Coach Wes Fesler handed him a ball and told him to go to work. He progressed fast and earned a first team berth last season—although he did hobble a few snaps of the ball.

Keen-Sighted
A hawk can detect a mouse from hundreds of feet in the air. Once sighted, the rodent has little chance to survive, for this fierce, flesh-eating bird descends upon its prey with deadly speed and accuracy.
Better Kept Cooked
Cooked meat or fish will keep longer at 45 degrees than if it is left uncooked. The heat of cooking kills many of the bacteria and enzymes which cause it to spoil.
announcement on the subject by Saturday, at the latest," Harden said.

2 Big 10 Schools To Ignore Ban on Other Sport Plugs

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — The University of Michigan and Michigan State College said today they will ignore a Western Conference ban on "plugging" other sports at their football games.
The Big Ten ruled two weeks ago that conference schools would not permit scores of baseball games or of professional football games to be announced at their own games.
Fritz Crisler, athletic director at the University of Michigan, said Michigan's policy this year will be the same as in the past with other sports scores being announced. Dean Edgar Harden, chairman of the Michigan State College athletic control board, said MSC will go along with Michigan.
Harden hinted that the Big Ten and its commissioner, Tug Wilson, may change their minds about the ban. "I expect to hear another

4. Charlie Ruffing has a record of winning seven games.
5. Bucky Harris was 28 when the Washington Senators defeated the New York Giants in 1924.

Southern Illinois university starts its conference football season Saturday, Oct. 2, entertaining Illinois Normal in a game starting at 8 p. m.
Southern is a member of the IIAAC, a conference that can trace its history back to April 4, 1908, when seven schools banded together, primarily to hold track meets. Southern was not a member, becoming a member in 1914.

Membership has changed radically through the years. At one time the league was unofficially known as the "Little 19".

Ten schools withdrew in 1937 and by 1942 only the five Illinois state teachers colleges remained—Southern, Northern, Western, Eastern and Illinois Normal. Then Central Michigan and Michigan Normal were admitted in 1950.

The league was originally known as the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic Association, but since 1920 has been known as the IIAAC. In 1920 the initials stood for Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, but now, with two Michigan schools members, the initials are for Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Southern's nickname is the "Salukis," the school colors are maroon and white, Bill O'Brien is head football coach and the team plays all home games in McAdams Stadium, with a seating capacity of 8,543.

Southern had its first football team in 1896, but organized, intercollegiate football was first played in 1913. The game was not played at Southern in 1920 or 1943, making the 1953 season Southern's 39th. During the 39 years, Southern had one perfect record team. In 1950 the team won all of its nine games. "Abe" Martin, later head football coach and athletic director, was captain of the undefeated team. During that nine-game schedule Southern did its best scoring, rolling to 224 points and also had its best defensive record, allowing only 24 points by the opposition.

Starting with Saturday, Oct. 2, all Missouri university football games will be broadcast over station KMOX, St. Louis, with Harry Caray at the mike.

Caray, known throughout this area as the St. Louis Cardinal broadcaster, will report the play-by-play of each game and Joe Garagiola, better known as a big league catcher, will handle the pregame broadcasts.

Brooklyn Fan is First in Line For Series Ticket

NEW YORK — A Brooklyn fan-of all people—was first in the grandstand line at the Polo Grounds today for the first game of the World Series between the New York Giants and the Cleveland Indians.
George Schneider, whose beloved "Bums" were dethroned as National league champions by the Giants, started the line at 4 a. m. Tuesday. The gates opened at 9 a. m. today.

Writers Pick Indians 2 to 1

NEW YORK — By a margin of more than 2 to 1, the nation's baseball writers are picking the Cleveland Indians to win the World Series.

A grand total of 102 writers polled by the United Press today chose the Indians, while only 46 writers believe that the New York Giants will give the National league its first world championship in eight years.
Only two writers were bold enough to pick a four-game series sweep and both of these, Carl Lundquist of the United Press and George Burton of the Long Island Star-Journal, picked the Indians.

The largest group, 65, picked the Indians in six games and nine more picked the Tribe in seven. Twenty-eight picked the Giants in six games and 16 picked the Giants in seven.

Briggs Leads Anti-Yankee Combine To Block A's Move to Kansas City

NEW YORK — An "anti-Yankee" combine has been lined up to block transfer of the Philadelphia Athletics franchise to Kansas City, the United Press learned today.

Walter O. (Spike) Briggs, owner of the Detroit Tigers, is leading the fight and he has the full support of owner Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators.

"Who do the Yankees think they are, anyway?" Briggs asked sarcastically. "They think they can run everything. Well, we ran them right out of the meeting yesterday. When Dan Topping couldn't get his way, he picked up his marbles and walked out with the rest of the Yankee crowd."

Briggs said he was "sick and tired" of the way in which recent franchise switching problems had been handled within the league.

Says Yanks Have Tried Twice
He said that the Yankees previously had tried to get the St. Louis Browns to move to Kansas City "even though there are at least two or three places that are better suited to handle a major league franchise."

The club owners met for six hours Tuesday and adjourned until Oct. 12 when Roy Mack, vice president of the Athletics, will report back and tell what progress he has made on getting new financial backing from Philadelphia interests next year.

Griffith, who would like to see the Athletics moved from Philadelphia, said he would continue to fight every effort to bring the club to Kansas City—"because that is too far west and upsets the geographical arrangement."
"I think that a big town like Toronto would be far better for everybody concerned," said Griffith. "There would be less travel difficulty and the league would be the most compact it ever has been."

Tuesday's meeting heard two different groups make "solid" offers of $3,375,000 for the Athletics, a purchase that would also include Connie Mack Stadium.
The offer first was made by Chicago realtor Arnold Johnson, head of the group that is seeking to switch the franchise to Kansas

THE STORY: Strange forebodings creep over Private Detective Jim Dunn and his wife Nancy as they start working for their client, Mrs. Kit Carlson, at The Spires, part of the Carlson estate. They are isolated from other members of the Carlson clan and Mrs. Kit has not yet arrived. Then Nancy sees a hideous, misshapen face pressed against the windowpane, looking in from the outside.

IX
Two strides took Jim to the door. He flung it open. "Why don't you come in? We didn't hear your knock."
The huge cook, Mrs. Gelstrap, stood in the doorway, filled it. "That your missus?" she asked, nodding toward Nancy who still looked as if her eyes were playing unpleasant tricks on her.
"That's the missus," Jim said. He made the formal introduction.
"Pleased to meet you, I'm sure," the cook said. "Right cozy you are here, I'm sure." Her greedy little eyes flicked around the room.
"More comfortable than we are. Mrs. Kit is cold. That's what I came over about." She sniffed and wheezed. "I can't stay now, but later your missus and I'll have a good long talk. Right now, Mrs. Kit wants you to come make a fire."

Jim got a flashlight and an armful of wood from the supply stacked under the balcony of the caretaker's cabin.
"Go on up," Jim told her. "I'll go through the basement and send up some wood. Be up later to make the fire."
He soon found it was not to be that simple. He had forgotten that Mrs. Hilton's wrecking crew had removed the woodpile. The armload he had carried was nearly lost when he thumped it down on the platform. He went back and got another and larger load.
Dunn had a fair-sized pile in the elevator at last and began working the crank, moving the load upward to the recess with the clink-clank, clink-clank he remembered so vividly from the night before.

The elevator moved up out of sight into the recess which made the window seat above. He was not usually morbid, but the six-foot-three-foot recess reminded him of only one thing.
He moved quickly across the basement, mounted the step stairs. The door at its head was locked. He pounded on it.
"Who—is it?"
"Jim," he said impatiently. "Jim Dunn. Come to light the fire as ordered. Remembered?"
He heard the sound of some piece of furniture being pulled aside, heard the key turn in the lock.
He pushed through, mentally listing all the things he intended saying, all the questions he wanted explicit answers to. One look at his client's face, and a good look at the pasty Mrs. Gelstrap, and his questions vanished.
The two women were frightened. "What is it?" he demanded. "What happened?"

Kit Carlson sat before some smoldering papers in the mammoth fireplace. She did not look at him as she spoke. "It's just—the cold. I'm so terribly cold. I didn't realize it would be so cold here this time of year. I—I was right—before. And that terrible, terrible noise the water makes. Can't you shut it off?"
Jim had to admit that was a feat beyond his powers. He opened the window seat, found he had piled the largest pieces of wood on top, with the small pieces beneath and the kindling still farther down in the heap.

"Warmer soon," Jim said cheerfully. "Don't you think it's about time we had a talk?"

She wet her lips. "Tell me. You had trouble here last night?"
"Nothing too much," Jim said. He gave her a censored version of what had happened.

A telephone bell rang. A series of longs and shorts.
The sound appeared so out of place that Jim stopped in the middle of a sentence. The phone rang again. He located the instrument now, sitting on a hinged shelf which obviously could be used to enclose the phone in a cubbyhole. It had been so enclosed before, and had not rung, or he and Nancy certainly would have found it. The phone sounded again in a series which told of a party line.

Kit Carlson and Mrs. Gelstrap eyed the instrument hungrily.
"Isn't there some other way of heating this place? I mean beside the fireplace?" It was all too obvious the young woman was torn between a desire for warmth and an almost irresistible impulse for eavesdropping.
Jim knew now of one possible means by which the two women could have been frightened. He had his mind on that, and he made a big mistake by not thinking about what he was saying. "There's a furnace in the basement."
Kit Carlson's face relaxed at this solution of her quandary. "Splendid. Splendid. Would you build a fire there too, right away? Please. We can have our talk in the morning."

Jim let himself be pushed from the room. He stood on the stairs until he heard the door locked behind him and the scrape of the piece of furniture being pulled before it.
He clanked open the door of the furnace, stared into its dusty maw. "Me and my big mouth," he muttered as he started hauling wood. (To Be Continued)

Chances Are He Hasn't Heard the Last of This

ST. LOUIS — The woman driver told the court she had the nickel in her hand but forgot to put it in the parking meter.
"But I was in the store only five minutes," she told City Judge Robert G. Dowd, "before I remembered and came out. There was a ticket on the car. Now is that right?"
The judge said it was right, and it showed the traffic police were alert.
As for punishment, Dowd said, maybe she shouldn't be allowed to drive the car for a week. But since she was a first offender, that might be too much. The regular fine would suffice.
"I'll go right down and pay the fine," Dowd told his wife, Marceline. "That will be one dollar. I'll take it out of your allowance next week."

To lengthen the life of your vacuum cleaner, pick up pins and other sharp materials before using the cleaner. It will pick them up, but they may puncture the bag so that it will leak dust when used.

To clean a paint brush full of old dried paint, soak the brush in turpentine until the paint is softened. Then, wash in lukewarm soapsuds several times and rinse.
